FACTS ON 1946 FORD DELIVERIES

• Perhaps you are among the thousands who are eagerly awaiting the delivery of your new 1946 Ford. We... the Ford Dealers... know and understand your feelings... your needs. Each day brings us hundreds of letters, telephone calls and personal visits from the folks on our waiting lists.

• Below are some facts which we think will help you realize why your new Ford has not yet arrived... "reasons why" that go beyond the control of the Ford Motor Company and us... its dealers.

HOW DO FORD DELIVERIES TODAY COMPARE WITH 1941?

100%

Actual deliveries first 5 months of 1941

32.7%

Actual deliveries first 5 months of 1946

The demand for 1946 Ford Cars is many times greater than in 1941. Yet, through May, dealers had received only 1/4 as many cars. The June delivery schedule is even smaller due to suppliers' labor difficulties.

WHY HAVE DELIVERIES DURING THE 1st 5 MONTHS OF 1946 FALLEN BEHIND DELIVERIES FOR THE SAME PERIOD IN 1941?

HOW DOES THE NUMBER OF ORDERS FOR 1946 FORD CARS ON HAND TODAY COMPARE WITH ORDERS AS OF JANUARY 1st?

IS A "TRADE-IN" NECESSARY FOR THE PURCHASE OF A NEW FORD?

WHAT PER CENT OF NEW 1946 FORDS HAVE BEEN DELIVERED TO VETERANS AND OTHER PRIORITY GROUPS?

BLACK MARKET:

Ford Dealers are pledged to resist the "Black Market" and its unscrupulous operators. They are making every possible effort to prevent 1946 Ford cars now being delivered from falling in the hands of people who buy for "resale".

The Choice Is Made . . .

Those voting the Republican ticket in the Primary Election have made their choice for the GOP Governor's nominee—Kim Sigler, former grand jury special prosecutor.

We wonder how many votes he received as a fighter for honesty and justice in government and how many for his reputation as a natty dresser and former cowboy.

His record as the grand jury prosecutor was brilliant even if some State Senators disagree with it. We believe that he has just scratched the surface in Lansing. If elected, we hope he continues digging for hidden graft.

Street Commissioner Julius Nelson reports that he has been at the Conine Grove, that is being used for free tourists and now has the place all slicked up and in neat order. The pump has been repaired and there is now plenty of fresh water. He is also looking after making concrete ovens that will be for the use of any who may desire them. Several loads of leaves and rubbish were carted away. Plans are under way to place a few electric lights in the park, and when this is done it will be one of the nicest camp grounds in the State. The pretty East Branch River that passes thru the grounds adds much to the beauty and pleasure of the place.

Mr and Mrs Leo Gannon are re-joining over the arrival of twin daughters, born at Mercy Hospital this morning. Mrs Gannon is the former Dollie Smock of Fredrick.

In the Bay City Times we note the announcement of the marriage of Mrs Theresa McFadden to W A Senay of Linwood, the marriage being solemnized in St Mary's Church, Bay City, Monday morning, Rev Fr McCann officiating. Mrs McFadden is the daughter of John O. Goudrow of this city.

H. Hanson having returned from Detroit, where he has been several months owing to ill health has decided to remain in Grayling. He has purchased the soft drink parlor of John Benson. He says that he intends to make this place inviting and pleasant and that he will also serve light lunches.

Miss Mary Wilber has resigned her position at the office of the Burke's Garage and has accepted a position as clerk in the Hans Peterson Grocery.

Miss Clara Nelson has closed a successful year as teacher in the Public schools of Royal Oak and is here to spend the summer with her parents, Mr and Mrs Lars Nelson.

Grant Salisbury is taking the place of George Prehn in the local trainmaster's office of the C. & N. R. until the latter returns. Mr Prehn is taking three months vacation to try and recuperate his health.

Miss Grace Bauman arrived home the latter part of the week from New York where she attends the Semple School.

The Board of Supervisors concluded a two day session Wednesday noon. The following were present: M A Bates, Chairman, Chas Craver of Frederic, Wm Feldhauser of Maple Forest, J E Kellogg of Lovells, Oliver B Scott of South Branch and Hans Christenson of Beaver Creek.

Ernest Jorgenson, who has been employed in Detroit, arrived home yesterday to spend a month visiting his parents, Mr and Mrs Rasmus Jorgenson.

Mrs Oscar W. Hanson and daughters, Ella and Margrethe, accompanied by Miss Margrethe Bauman, are enjoying a motor trip through the southern part of the state. At present they are visiting Mrs Hanson's mother, Mrs Ella Smith and her sister, Mrs Roy Bricker, of Cass City.

Ivan Cameron who has been employed at the A & P Tea Co. store left this week for Harbor Springs to work for Mr Crowell there. Donald Reynolds is the new clerk at the A & P store in Grayling.

Twenty-four of Junior Hanson's friends helped him to celebrate his 12th birthday Wednesday afternoon at his summer home at Lake Margrethe. The children all had a fine time playing games, Edwin Morfit receiving the prize. Later in the afternoon lunch was served on the lawn.

Michigan is surpassed only by New York and California in popularity as a tourist state, a survey made public by the Crowell Collier research department reveals.

The Great Lakes area, the survey shows, is the second most popular section of the country with tourists.

The survey, made from the mailing lists of Collier's magazine, showed that on their "last unrestricted vacation" six percent of those questioned spent their vacation in Michigan. Topping Michigan were New York with nine percent and California with eight percent. Florida ran fourth with five percent.

Most popular region was the East South Central and South Central states which included Washington, D.C., Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and Mississippi. The area attracted 17 percent of the tourists questioned. 16 percent came to the Great Lakes area, which included only Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Ohio. Michigan leads all states in this group by two to one.

Some 60 percent of the persons who took their vacations in the Great Lakes areas came from other sections of the United States.

As many people vacationed in Michigan as in the whole of Canada, the survey showed.

YOUR M.D.
HAS PLANS

And You're in Them!

YES, your family doctor of medicine is planning great plans to serve you and your whole family. Scientific Plans: Medical research, medical study and medical experiments daily open new avenues to longer life. The formidable frontiers of disease are yielding to the march of medical science.

Civic Plans: From "big city specialist" to "country doc" your Michigan M.D.'s are spreading the protective blanket of quality medical care over more and more families. Michigan Medical Service and Michigan Hospital Service are plans approved by your family doctor and by your State Legislature (in 1939) to make available to you and to all others the kind of medical care that has made the U. S. the healthiest large nation in the world.

Economic Plans: For but a few cents a day these voluntary medical and hospital service plans insure you against costly sickness and hospital expense. In the United States 40 million people are now protected by health and accident insurance plans that annually pay to policy holders $500,000,000.

These plans are being placed in danger by proposed legislation such as the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill now before Congress. This Bill would destroy the plans of your doctor and substitute a mammoth new bureau under political dictatorship. It would cost you and all other wage-earners Four Billion Dollars ($4,000,000,000) annually in new taxes.

Know the facts—protect your family's health and purse by urging your Congressman to vote against the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill.

STORIES OF HOW NAMES HELPED MAKE AMERICA GREAT

MICHIGAN AND THE OLD NORTHWEST

Mission at Sandwich

"I certainly am. Why the query?"

"It may be pretty noisy. Dick and Cherry are having a couple of youngsters in."

"What on earth are you feeding them with?"

"I was very lucky. I got some short-ribs of beef. And shrimps to start with."

"Better than anything I could get at the commissary. I'll be there. If Kessler turns up with an idea worth talking about, I may be a bit late."

"All right. But I'll have to feed the children. We'll start at seven-thirty whether you're there or not. How's that?"

"Okay. I'll have to go in now."

He waved her good-by. Elizabeth watched him until he went into his bungalow, then turning the car around she went back through the gate and started toward the canyon pass that would lead her home to Beverly Hills.

Elizabeth had a high opinion of marriage, because it was an institution in which she had found a great deal of happiness. She had been married twice, the first marriage joyous but brief, for it had been ended in 1918 by a shell at Chateau-Thierry. Strange to remember now that she had thought her life was over, for she was only twenty when it happened, and nobody could have told her she was going to meet Spratt. She had had no children by her first husband and there was nothing concrete in her present life to remind her of him. But it was her memory of Chateau-Thierry that made her more frightened than Spratt when they spoke of their son's approaching military age. Spratt loved Dick as much as she did, but he had not had a personal experience of the price of war. Though Spratt was an eminently practical man, his mind simply did not accept the possibility that Dick could be killed. Her mind did accept it, because she had been through it once and knew it could happen. But she tried sincerely not to think about it, and for the most part she succeeded. Dick would inevitably be eighteen; what took place after that was up to him and his country. Horrible as it was, this war was nevertheless a battle against evil that must be stopped or it would make the world unfit for Dick to live in. There was no use letting herself get useless and shaky with dread. "I won't have to face it for nearly a year," Elizabeth said to herself for the thousandth time. "Anything can happen before then." So she let it go. Dick was still seventeen, and she had everything she had ever wanted—a congenial marriage, three children, and days full of worthwhile occupation. "It's a good life," she thought as she turned into the canyon road and the fragrance of sage blew up to her from the glens. "A very good life. I like it."

In the driveway she paused to give some directions to the gardener. Her youngest, Brian, aged eleven, appeared with his bicycle. She called to him.

"Where are you going, Brian?"

"Scout meeting." He looked up and down the street. "Peter's supposed to come by and go with me. I said I'd wait in front for him. He ought to be here now."

"All right." She nearly added, "Be careful of the traffic," but stopped herself. Brian was as expert with a bicycle as she was with a car. He had never got himself hurt riding, and there was no sense in being overly fussy with him. From scanning the street he turned to look up at her.

"Mother, can I stay for dinner with Peter?"

"Has he asked you?"

"Not yet, but I'm going home with him after Scout meeting to see his lepidopterist." Brian got out the word importantly—"and he might, I mean if he does, can I stay?"

"Not unless his mother asks you," she answered gravely. "You mustn't ever go to dinner with any of the boys unless their mothers ask you. Brian, if Mrs. Stern invites you to stay, tell her you aren't sure, and ask her to call me up."

hips and her round young breasts than to conceal them. Elizabeth suddenly thought, "Good heavens, how fast I'd have been arrested if I'd gone swimming as nearly naked as that when I was her age! But she's really lovely."

Since Cherry was his sister, Dick rarely paid much attention to how she looked, but it was quite evident that the fourth member of their party was aware of her charms; he was a classmate of Dick's, who, since his name was Herbert Clarendon Whitlier, was known to his intimates as Pudge. At the moment Pudge was shaking the lemon tree while Cherry scrambled around gathering the lemons as they fell. Dick stood poised on the diving-board, evidently about to perform some marvelous feat for the admiration of his girl friend, who sat with her legs dangling into the water at the shallow end, watching him. What a healthy-looking creature he was, Elizabeth thought, and how he was growing up. He really looked more like a man than a boy now, and he suddenly thought of Dick as he had been when he was so tiny she could carry him on one arm, and he was soft and warm and smelt like talcum powder. "That's how it goes," she thought. "Strange, and of course it isn't strange at all. It's been happening like this for ten thousand years, but it still seems strange when it happens to yourself. Now before many years more he'll marry some immature little girl like that Julia Rayford, and she'll have a baby, and he'll come in and bend over it with that same expression that Spratt had the first time he saw Dick. If it's a boy they'll name him Richard Spratt Herlong III and if it's a girl they'll argue about every name from Amoryllis to Zillah and compromise on some prosaic family name like mine, and I'll get a smug patriarchal air about me, and we'll all have a grand time and be just as excited about it as if it hadn't happened to anybody else. Of course, before that we'll have to get through the war. Oh, why should any group of power-mad scoundrels have the power to send the world into a holocaust? Boys like Dick—I will not think about it now. He doesn't think about it. Or I wonder if he does?"

She recalled Dick at the radio the day of Pearl Harbor. She came into the living room, as stunned as everyone else was that day, to find him listening, his lips drawn back from his teeth in an expression of horror almost grotesque on so young a face. As she entered he looked up at her and said deliberately, "The yellow-bellied bums." She gave an exclamation, shocked to discover he had such an expression in his vocabulary, but all he did was grin mischievously and reply, "I know some worse words than that and if you don't want to hear them you'd better go out and listen to the portable in the garden with the boss, because I feel like saying them." Elizabeth was astonished, not only at his words but at his vehemence. It was the first time Dick had ever seemed to her like anything but a fun-loving little boy. The news from Pearl Harbor had shocked him into a strange and sudden maturity. She went out to the garden and told Spratt what he had said. Spratt answered tersely, "I know how he feels." "So do I," said Elizabeth. "I couldn't have scolded him with any conviction." They listened awhile to the enraging radio voices, and suddenly she exclaimed, "Spratt! We're in the war. That means that before long—it means Dick." Spratt said, "Yes. I wish it meant me." Elizabeth got chilly all over, but she told herself that day for the first time, "I don't have to face it yet!"

She wondered how Dick felt about it now. She was not sure. Dick spoke of the war sometimes, with the matter-of-fact assumption that when he came of age he would get into it, but right now it seemed less important to him than campus affairs, probably because by the reckoning of seventeen anything a year ahead was too remote to be of pressing concern. "Good heavens, what she broke off her thoughts, for Dick rose up from the board, turned over twice in the air and cut like a knife into the water, resurfacing just in time to hear Julia exclaim, "Dick, that's wonderful! Do you think I could learn to do it?"

Pudge saw Elizabeth first. He called, "How do you do, Mrs. Herlong?" and the others turned to wave at her. Elizabeth waved back as she drove the car into the garage. When she had put it up she walked across the grass toward the pool.

"Hello, all of you. Cherry, what on earth are you going to do with all those lemons?"

"Make lemonade," said Cherry, and Pudge added, "See—don't mind, do you?"

"Of course not, but you've shaken down enough to make about four gallons. Pick up the rest of them in a towel or something, Cherry, and bring them in; we can use them."

"I'll get the ice," Dick offered, scrambling out of the pool. "Julia, you and Pudge wait for us here, you don't know where things are." He took up a towel from the grass and began scrubbing his lean brown legs. "The trunks are drippy, but I won't go anywhere but in the kitchen," he promised before Elizabeth could give him any orders.

"All right," she agreed, and started for the house. Crossing a balcony that ran along the back she entered the den which the children were allowed to use as their own, and paused to glance with curiosity at some disreputably dusty old magazines stacked up against the wall. They looked like the accumulation of years from an attic; what the children meant to do with them she could not imagine, unless one of the schools was having a drive for the Salvation Army.

The door leading to the kitchen burst open and Dick put his head in.

"Mother, do you want a glass of lemonade?"

"Why yes, I'd love one."

"You'll have to come and get it, unless I'm allowed on the rug."

"I'll come get it," she said hastily, and went into the kitchen before he could bring his dripping trunks into the den. Dick and Cherry were making a great racket with ice cubes and glasses, their suits leaving puddles on the linoleum and bringing unhappy glances from the cook. "What are all those old papers doing in the den?" Elizabeth asked as she accepted a glass from Dick.

"They're ours," Cherry answered. "Julia's and mine, I mean. We've got to write an essay for costume design about the reconstruction of twelfth-century clothes. Julia found those old magazines up in the attic at her house and we're going to get some ideas from them."

"I see. Don't bring them into the living room unless you dust them off."

"Okay," said Cherry. She disappeared with the pitcher of lemonade, and Dick held up a box of cookies he had found on a cupboard shelf.

"Can we have these, mother?"

"Such appetites! Very well, take them."

"Thanks." He followed Cherry out to the pool. When she had conferred with the cook about dinner, Elizabeth went upstairs.

She glanced into Spratt's room. Everything there was in order—cigarettes in the boxes, matches and ashtrays beside them, Time and Newsweek on the table, along with a couple of novels from an agency and a notebook in which Spratt could scribble ideas about their picture possibilities. She made sure his pencils were sharpened, drew a curtain across one window through which the sun was pouring in to fade the rug, and went through the communicating doorway into her own room.

This was her favorite spot in the whole house. Much as she loved her family there were times when she was glad to be alone, and this was the only place that was entirely hers. Here everything was arranged to please herself—the bed with its monogrammed blue cover.

CHAPTER I. Spratt Herlong was a major producer of motion pictures. He called Elizabeth, his wife, to join him at lunch. Elizabeth knew that something was not going right at the studio and that her husband desired her presence more to talk to her than to receive any real assistance.

CHAPTER II

"Fine, Kennedy," said Spratt. "How's the baby?"

"All right again. Just a cold. Nothing to worry about. You all right, Mrs. Herlong?"

"Never better," answered Elizabeth, and started the car again. She drove into the lot, turned to the left and went along a street of bungalows, each with a nameplate of one of the Spratts. She stopped at the door. Spratt got out, and standing on the gravel drive he turned back to look at her as she sat behind the wheel. She saw his eyes going over her, appreciatively. Spratt had gray eyes, cold as fog until they looked at something that stirred a luminous warmth within them, when they had the gentle grayness of olive leaves. Spratt looked over the glimmering car and over Elizabeth, trim and alert behind the wheel in her dark green autumn dress and mink jacket. He looked at her well-brushed hair, her face, lean and clean-cut with its healthy skin, her still excellent figure, her hands in brown leather gloves resting competently on the wheel. Spratt smiled, taking her in with the same comprehensive grasp of detail that enabled him to spot one inconspicuous cigarette box in a studio set containing a hundred items. He nodded with satisfied appraisal.

"Not bad," he observed, "for a little girl from Tulsa, Oklahoma." Elizabeth laughed at him. "Are you coming home for dinner?"

Newsman Admits Apprehension of A-Bomb Mission

By WALTER A. SHEAD

WNU Correspondent
ABOARD USS APPALACHIAN
(Via Navy Radio)—Civil and military welcoming committees out of the way, with the beauty and color of the Paradise of the Pacific a pleasant memory interlude in the midst of this serious military experiment the "Big Apple" today has her nose pointed westward on the second leg of our hop toward Bikini atoll and the atomic bomb test, the results of which may revolutionize naval tactics. The waters of the Marshall Islands are not new to the Appalachian and the members of her crew who first took her into combat duty in these very waters the conquest and capture of Kwajalein, which is our next port of call. She is a sturdy ship and bears few scars of her tour of duty in the war in the Pacific in the Marshalls, the Admiralty, the Solomons, at Leyte, the Marianas, at Guam and other action since Pearl Harbor. On this tour she is the press ship of Adm. W. H. P. Blandy's task force and aboard are picked newspaper men and representatives of the other media such as news reels, radio, technical magazines, television and others. Although most of them are on other ships of the group, such as the Panamint and the Blue Ridge, there is a sprinkling of scientists aboard and a sort of friendly ribbing going on constantly between the "lay" or mine-run members of the press and these scientific writers, many of whom are members of the "I Am a Frightened Man Club" and predict dire results and dangers to personnel of this task force when the bomb burst, scheduled July 1, takes place.

TO DROP BOMB... Major Harold Wood, age 30, of Bordenstown, N. J., responsible for bullseye.

In spite of their fun-poking, the newspaper men generally privately admit they feel some apprehension and beneath the raillery there is a feeling of tenseness among many of us which increases daily.

The trip thus far from Navy Pier in Oakland to Honolulu, where our two-day stay was all too short, has been like a pleasure cruise but now we are getting down to the serious part of this most stupendous military experiment in history. The information center, however, offers every facility and we are scheduled for a series of round-table conferences to orientate us to the main objectives of operations crossroads.

One of the most interesting phases of this operation is the time element. Fourteen different time zones are involved in the operation by virtue of the location of Bikini west of the International Date Line. For instance if the first atomic bomb is dropped at 10 a. m. Monday, July 1, it will be 5 p. m. Sunday, June 30, in Chicago.

As this is written out of Pearl Harbor we still have some 2,000 miles of trackless blue water to traverse at a speed of approximately 11 knots or about 13 miles an hour. Before we reach Kwajalein where we will spend a day viewing the elaborate installations which have been set up in quarters, laboratories, air facilities as a base for the army air corps which will drop the bomb and the 37,000 men of the joint task force.

The logistics and the planning which have gone into this operation will rival those in the invasion of Normandy and scientists in and out of the navy have ready for installation the most elaborate measuring devices to meter actual effects of the explosion on the target array of combat and other ships, army and navy materiel, live animals tethered aboard some ships and ordnance for army, navy and air of all descriptions.

In addition recording devices, specially constructed cameras for television, radar controlled drone planes, which will fly through the atomic cloud at varying heights will bring back samples of the radio active materials and vapor to be rushed to the laboratories for test. It is this radio activity for the explosion of atomic which may be used for the benefit of mankind in peace time pursuits. As a matter of fact, the Manhattan district is now releasing or has released small portions of radio active substances to universities and laboratories.

PLAY SAFE WITH GOOD BRAKES!

AVOID ACCIDENTS—SAFETY CHECK YOUR CAR AT YOUR Ford DEALER

CHECK your driving—check accidents now and every time you get behind the wheel of your car. Unsafe cars are a major cause of accidents. Make sure your car is in tiptop shape. See your Ford Dealer today for a thorough Safety Check of these important items:

- BRAKES: Do they need adjustment? Do they need fluid? Are the linings worn? Do they have proper pedal pressure?
- HORN: Are all horn connections tight? Is the horn in condition to give a signal when you need it?
- STEERING: Is there too much "play" in the wheel? Do your steering controls operate easily? Is the wheel alignment correct?
- LIGHTS: Do bulbs need replacing? Are your headlights properly focused? Is the wiring in tiptop shape—no loose connections?
- TIRES: Do they have sufficient tread to guard against skids? Cuts or excessive wear may cause a blow-out accident.
- WIPERS: Do wiper blades need replacing? Is the mechanism in shape for satisfactory operation every time you need it?
